Most power back on in Christchurch and central Canterbury

Less than 300 customers are still without electricity in the Orion network area in Christchurch and central Canterbury.

Most of the affected customers are in the rural area west of Christchurch, including in parts of Weedons, Hororata, Kimberley and Castle Hill.

“We know how difficult it is to be without power in these conditions, and we’re working as quickly as we can to get power back to everyone,” says Orion Chief Executive Rob Jamieson.

“Access difficulties are hampering efforts, especially in the Castle Hill area. In other places damage from trees falling into lines has been significant, which means repairs can take a long time.”
